EXT. A HILL WITH A BOWL IN THE MIDDLE-DAY

Around the hill is a PUBG like border. There are six people behind a cover in the middle of the hill, and six other people firing AK-47s and other guns at them from the north, and they are firing back.

We see the last of their shots fired and hear a clicking sound.

TOMMY

That's my last shot.

LISA

MATTHEW

My name is Matthew. Once I was a cop.

MATTHEW

I am the one who runs from both the living and the dead.

DEADMAN

We're living. Your not running. And how can you run from the dead?

MATTHEW

Haunted by the ones I could not save.

DEADMAN

Who could you not save? None of us have died. And who the hell are you talking to?

Well, I do have a baseball bat.

The people to north have started to move into the bowl. One is still up the hill.

LISA

They're coming.

Danny takes the baseball bat from Stella and charges the people with it. Battle music plays. Then the music stops as Danny is shot six times in the chest. He falls dead.

Deadman stands up.

DEADMAN

Oh my god, they killed Danny!

Deadman is shot and falls back screaming.

We hear mad sounding bass music.

Every one in the bowl looks around.

Camera is now on the bass player he is wearing a mask.

We then hear a loud scream. Everyone now looks north.

The person on the hill is dead, and a man in a gas mask, leather jacket, and blue jeans is standing over the body with a bloody axe.

Twelve bike riders ride to the edge of the bowl in the hill.

The man in the gas mask drops the axe and begins to flip off the people in the bowl. As he does there is a battle scream.

MATTHEW

Each of us in our own way was broken.

MASK

(voice is muffled a little because

MATTHEW

It was hard to know who was more crazy, me or them.

WEEB

(nerdy voice) What?

STELLA

If we find it why would one of us go back?

LORD GONE

No one would go.

STELLA

So that means if we had the stuff in the first place. No one would go back to make the bunker. So there would be no bunker.

RIDER

Ok.

STELLA
